ATS or American Tribal Style Belly Dance is a form of synchronized group improvisational dance. With a set vocabulary of movements and cues, dancers learn to trust themselves and build confidence in both leading and following. This dance allows for all students to move together as one unit, inviting many possibilities for creative expression within the framework of this style. This style is set apart from others by its strong center, and grounded presentation. This style also focuses on group dynamics which help to foster strength and connection with other dancers.

This form of ATS utilizes both sides of the body for balance, as well as unusual and exciting concepts in chorus work, props and zills. This style of dance will be taught in Kajira Djoumahnaçs format.

Students can use a piece of fabric or shawl to place around the hips as isolations make up a large portion of this style of dance. Finger cymbals are not necessary. They will be used in class by the instructor, as this form of dance deals with stepping in time to the music, and showcases musical ability along with dance. To purchase cymbals for class please call the instructor for sizing and vendor information.

ATS Level 2 with Stefanie Masters

Level 2 ATS classes will focus more on the connection aspect of working together as a team, with zillar, leads and chorus. Pre requisite is Level 1 and approval to move forward from the instructor. Level 2 classes will introduce 75 new techniques as well as formations. You will work on correct cueing and getting in and out of lead positions.

For more information please contact the instructor, Stefanie at 262-689-1075.

Classes will be offered at Lake Shore Dance in Saukville. See the following page for class dates and times.

Classes are for girls and women age 12 and older.
